

Adding value through collaboration

Collaboration helps us to do our best work. It is an essential component for problem-solving and decision making. We believe that successful collaboration leverages unique opportunities, builds trust and empowerment among collaborators, and creates new mutually beneficial opportunities.

The Manchester Lecture is one of the UK's leading one day events within the built environment, bringing together a broad cross-section of industry professionals, experts and many civil engineering surveying practitioners.

Call for papers: Come and have your say!
